

In-SHUCK-ch Mountain

The above picture of In-SHUCK-ch mountain is named on maps of British Columbia as Gunsight Mountain. It can be found on the northwestern end of the Little Lillooet Lake. In the Úcwalmícwts (lower Lillooet dialect), the name of this mountain is pronounced In-SHUCK-ch, meaning “split like a crutch” (referring to the split precipice at its peak.) In-SHUCK-ch has great significance in the origin stories of the Lillooet.

The image below displays In-SHUCK-ch Mountain from another angle. The image bears a resemblance to Ntci'nemkin or his brother praying for the flood waters to recede.

Directions to In-SHUCK-ch Days 2008

1. Drive into Mount Currie.
2. Turn right at the church.
3. Drive for about 10 km along Lillooet Lake Road.
4. At Lillooet Lake watch for the In-SHUCK-ch Forest Service Road sign, turn right on this road.
5. Continue on the In-SHUCK-ch Forest Service Road (Lake Road) until you see the community of Skatin to your right at 48 km. You should also notice a church.
